

Question 7 - Section II -

"Evaluate the importance of artists' intentions in the production and meaning of artworks."

Well firstly the intentions of the artists is that (in most artist's paintings or work) what they have been through going through and if they are actually enjoying there lives like Micheal Angelo if you pay attention to his paintings you see that he explains and shows it with paint his life and if he's enjoying life or not ~~which~~ and he shows this with colours such as red could represent blood, black could represent bad times or even death, white which could represent that he's loving his life or heaven.

They also have all different kind of paintings religious, historical and many more this kind of paintings are all used today and ~~so~~ with the audience, artwork, artist and the artworld.